PREFACE.

The present Catalogue is a collection and rearrangement of all the lists issued by the Ladies' Commission on Sunday-school Books, with additions from the publications of the past year. It contains the titles of all books which have been found adapted to Unitarian Sunday-school Libraries, since the work of the Commission began. It has been prepared with special reference to the needs of superintendents and teachers in the smaller towns and villages, who have little or no opportunity to make a judicious selection for their libraries; yet, since it is the result of much painstaking, it is to be hoped that it may save Sunday-school teachers in our cities the necessity of gleaning for themselves from the mass of juvenile literature.

The Commission was organized by the Secretary of the American Unitarian Association, in 1865, in recognition of the need felt, throughout the denomination, of making our Sunday-school Libraries more in harmony with the spirit and methods of our Sabbath-school instruction. That the mode of preparing this Catalogue may be understood, we give a brief statement of its history.

We endeavored first to become acquainted with the books usually found upon the shelves of Unitarian Sunday-school Libraries, and hence it may be inferred that such of them as do not appear in our lists were not regarded by us as worthy a place there. As these libraries had been gathered from various sources and at different times, often under circumstances which rendered the careful examination of each volume impossible, it was not surprising that they included many worthless and sensational books, and many also which inculcate doctrines directly at variance with the convictions of Unitarians.

We have solicited from general publishing-houses, as well as from the Sunday-school Societies of other denominations, copies of such books for examination as, in their opinion, were entitled to our consideration. We have endeavored also to keep a knowledge of current juvenile literature, and to appropriate from all these sources whatever books we found adapted to our lists. A number of books recommended in our first Catalogue are now out of print; but we have retained them on our lists, indicating this fact, since, in some cases, new editions may appear, and, in others, our approval of these older books may be of value wherever the Catalogue is used in the revision of existing libraries.

We have found it desirable to arrange these books under three Lists, merely as a matter of convenience. The First List contains no better books than the Second and Third, but simply books of a different character. Those on our Second List may perhaps be regarded by some as of special value, since we recommend them, notwithstanding the occasional occurrence on their pages of doctrines which we believe to be false, and pernicious in their influence on the minds of children. If such doctrines pervade a book, are interfused through its spirit and color its whole expression, we are obliged to discard it at once; but in the books here recommended there are a few scattered passages which we have marked as objectionable, and which could be easily cut out by those having the care of a library.

On the First and Second Lists will be found books which are intended to exert a religious influence. This is not so generally the case with those on the Third List; although we regard them as also suited to our purpose on account of their healthy moral tone, and the useful instruction which they communicate. We intend to recommend on this list no books of history which are not trustworthy, and no books relating to natural science which have not been examined by persons familiar with the subjects there treated.

The practice among publishers of putting up books in sets, and of selling them only in this way, is a source of great inconvenience to those who purchase books merely with regard to their positive value. The volumes thus incongruously brought together are often the work of different writers, and are of very unequal merit. We can recommend only such as we approve; and it may therefore be inferred that we regard those volumes of a set of books not found in the Catalogue as in some respects of inferior value. In a few cases we have excluded from our lists one or two good books belonging to a set, because they cannot be bought separately, though they have no connection with their companion volumes.

We have been obliged occasionally to omit from the Catalogue books of marked popularity, on account of the character of the children represented, or the constant use of coarse expressions thoughout the story. We have not felt ourselves justified in recommending to Sunday Schools any book, however attractive in other respects, which is disfigured in this way.

It is matter for regret that so few good works of biography and history are written for children; for it can hardly be doubted that such books would be more attractive, as well as more profitable, than many of the weak and dull stories with which the market is overstocked. The history of the late war has brought to notice young men whose lives are full of valuable suggestion and heroic example, and which offer certainly enough of exciting incident to make interesting and attractive biographies.

We cannot expect that, among those who will make use of this Catalogue, no one will differ from our judgments, or find an undesirable book approved by us. The standard of excellence in juvenile books must, of course, differ according to the taste and judgment of individual readers. We simply claim for these lists that they have been made with care and fidelity, and with a regard to what we consider the wants of children in the Liberal Churches.

At the request of a number of persons, we have added to our Catalogue a list of Books of Reference for Sunday-school teachers. We are indebted to several clergymen of our denomination for the help which they have kindly given in making out this list; and more especially to Ezra Abbot, Esq., of Cambridge, to whose accurate and critical scholarship, as well as to the generosity with which he has put his time and labor at our disposal, its value is chiefly due. The list is offered as forming, on the whole, a library of the best books on each subject; and, while every book is recommended, all are not considered necessary, the size and price affording a guide in the choice. The larger the number of these books which a Sunday School can afford to obtain, the better; but, where the more expensive are beyond the reach of any school, it is hoped that teachers will find the needful information in others which are recommended.

At the suggestion of many of our friends, and with the approval of the Secretary of the American Unitarian Association, we have included in our work the preparation of a catalogue of books for general reading. We hope it may aid young people who have access to good libraries, but who need a guide in the selection of their reading, and that it may prove serviceable to those interested in forming small libraries for the use of young persons. This list is distinct from our special work for the Sunday Schools, and is issued in a separate pamphlet, which will be sold at a low price to cover the cost of printing.

To this preface, written in 1871, the Ladies' Commission now desire to add that their constant endeavor is, to continue the work with the same fidelity which marked its beginning.

Time and experience have only deepened their conviction of the need of thorough examination of the books written for young persons. The mass of fiction which floods the libraries of this country is regarded by thoughtful observers as a grave peril to national character. Against such a threatening tide, no dyke is so strong as the love and habit of good reading. If we can offer a sound and agreeable variety of reading for intelligent young minds, we are well content to spend our time and labor.

The total number of books examined is five thousand four hundred and thirty-three (5,433). Of these, fourteen hundred and fifty-two (1,452) have been approved, and the titles are found in the present catalogue. It will be seen that we have, from the beginning rejected seventy-three per cent of all books examined, as being unsuitable for our purpose.

Complaints sometimes reach us that some of our books are not to be found in the shops. We would suggest that a searching investigation of booksellers' upper shelves will frequently discover a volume said to be out of print. We keep many titles, in the hope of a reprint.

The Sunday School Society, 7 Tremont Place, is ready to furnish our books, to Sunday Schools or individuals, at the lowest prices.

I. DICTIONARIES AND CONCORDANCES.

SMITH, William. Dictionary of the Bible, comprising its Antiquities, Biography, Geography, and Natural History. 3 vols. Boston [London], 1860, 8°. $18 00.

——— The Same. Revised and edited by H. B. Hackett, with the Co-operation of Ezra Abbot. 4 vols. New York, 1868–70, 8°. $26.00.

A reprint of the English edition, unabridged, with the addition of more than 500 pages of new matter, many engravings, and an index of the principal passages of Scripture illustrated. The list of contributors to this new edition includes the names of twenty-eight American Scholars.

——— Concise Dictionary of the Bible: being a Condensation of the Larger Dictionary. Boston [London], 1865, 8°. $4.50.

——— Smaller Dictionary of the Bible. For the use of Schools and Young Persons. Boston [London], 1866, sm. 8°. $3.00.

SMITH, William and BARNUM, S. W. A Comprehensive Dictionary of the Bible. Mainly abridged from Smith's Dictionary, but comprising Important Additions. Edited by S. W. Barnum. New York, 1868, large 8°. Cloth, $5.00; sheep, $6.00.

On the whole, the best of the abridgments of Smith's Dictionary, but more conservative and dogmatic than the original. The "Concise Dictionary of the Bible," on the other hand, judiciously omits the few articles in Smith which have a doctrinal character, as "Son of God," "Son of Man," and "Spirit, The Holy."

KITTO, John. Cyclopædia of Biblical Literature. 3d Ed. Edited by W. L. Alexander. 3 vols. Phila. [Edinb.], 1865-66, large 8°. $25.00.

This work is not a mere Bible Dictionary, but includes biographical notices of eminent biblical scholars. The first edition, reprinted at New York in 1846 in 2 vols. 8°, may be procured, bound in half calf, for $7.50. Though far inferior to the present edition, it has much valuable matter.

M'Clintock, John, and Strong, James. Cyclopædia of Biblical, Theological, and Ecclesiastical Literature. Vols. I.–VI. A–N. New York, 1867–77, large 8°. Cloth, $5 00 per vol. ; sheep, $6 00. (By subscription.)

To be completed in about 9 vols. Very comprehensive and well edited.

Beard, J. R. People's Dictionary of the Bible. 3d. Ed. (Stereotyped) 2 vols. London, 1850, 8°. 21*s*.

Reissued (in 1866 ?) in one volume, with the title "The Household Illustrated Biblical Cyclopædia," and sold, by the American Unitarian Association, at from $6.50 to $9.00, according to the style of binding.

Ayre, John. The Treasury of Bible Knowledge. London, 1866, 16°. $3.00.

Eastwood, Jonathan, and Wright, W. A. The Bible Word-book : a Glossary of Old English Bible Words. London and Cambridge, 1866, 16°. $1.50.

Cruden, Alex. Complete Concordance to the Holy Scriptures. New York, 1864, large 8°. Sheep, $3.50.

——— The Same, condensed. New York, 16°. Cloth, $1.50 ; sheep, $2.00.

Concordance to the Old and New Testament, the Apocrypha, and to the Psalter, as contained in the Book of Common Prayer. London [1859], 8°. Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge. 14*s*. $5 00. ?

Hitchcock, R. D. A New and Complete Analysis of the Holy Bible ; or, the Whole of the Old and New Testament arranged according to Subjects, in Twenty-seven Books. With Cruden's Concordance, as revised by Eadie. New York, 1870, large 8°. A. J. Johnson. Cloth, $6.00 ; half morocco, $8.00. (By subscription.)

Far superior to West and Eadie.

YOUNG. John. "The Life and Light of Men." An Essay. London and New York, 1866, sm. 8°. $2 75.

The author of this work, formerly one of the most eminent ministers of the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland, here presents the grounds on which he has felt constrained to reject the prevalent "evangelical," or rather scholastic, theories respecting the Atonement. The book, like the two preceding, is of interest not only for the earnestness and ability with which it is written, but as a cheering sign of theological progress. Out of print.

——— The Creator and the Creation, how Related. New Ed., thoroughly revised and altered. London, 1870, cr. 8°. $2.00.

Originally published under the title, "The Mystery; or, Evil and God." The author has now become a believer in the ultimate salvation of all men.

HALE, Lucretia P. The Lord's Supper, and its Observance. Boston, 1866, 12o. $1.00.

CONSTITUTION (The) of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, containing the Confession of Faith, the Catechisms, and the Directory for the Worship of God; together with the Plan of Government and Discipline. Phila., N. D., 18°. Presb. Board of Publ. Sheep. About 38 cts.

The Westminster Assembly's Catechisms and Confession of Faith, slightly modified, are the doctrinal standards of the Presbyterian Church. Here we have "Orthodoxy" undiluted.
